They were intimate friends of the distinguished scholar, Doctor Robert Douglass, and the name Mildred in the Richeson family was bestowed in token of the esteem in which Dr. Douglass' wife, Mildred, was held by the Richeson family. Their traditions of the social life in Charlottesville were highly interesting. We may recall, too, the fact that Mr. John Richeson was principal of the first Public school established in Maysville.

EXERCISES POSTPONED

Commencement of Minerva College Put Off for a While.

The Commencement Exercises of Minerva College, which were to begin next Wednesday, lasting three days, have been postponed indefinitely, owing to a case of scarlet fever in the neighborhood.

This action was taken at a meeting of the Board of Education of the College last evening.

This year's exercises were to be among the best this school has ever had, the past year's work, in all its branches, having been unusually creditable and gratifying.

The social department of the Epworth League of the Third Street M.E. Church scored another big success last evening. Their "Pic Social" exceeded the expectations of the most sanguine. A large crowd was in attendance, and that they were all pleased and happy, was plainly evident from their smiling faces. The management of the affair was placed in the hands of the Male Quartette and that they did their part all will agree. There were so many pleasant features that it would be needless to try to mention all. On the Orchestra, always good, was at its best and their selections were continuously applauded. The Quartette's selections were fine and added much to the occasion, as also, did the reading of "The League's Loquacina Literary Ledger." The best feature of the program was the Clarinet solo of Mr. Kenneth P. Clark. Mr. Clark has gained an enviable reputation as a Clarinetist, his services being in demand continually to play with the bands and orchestras of the surrounding country. It is a rare treat to hear his solos. His playing is a quality of tone and artistic execution unequalled. He very generously responded to two encores, each time receiving great applause. The men are real prides over the success of their social and will let the ladies try their hands at the next one, which will anxiously look forward to.

It is just possible that the Jury considered the matter in a philosophical light and arrived at the conclusion that had the shoe been on the other foot; or in other words had Wood won Ryan's money, it would have been alright and nothing said about it.

If man will persist in such baseless pastimes they ought to acquiesce whether luck smiles or frowns upon them. Gambling is naughty, and ladies and gentlemen should not indulge in the elusive game of poker or progressive euchre.

LOST THE DEAL

Another Gambling Suit Decided in the Circuit Court Yesterday

In the case of Nat S. Wood against Thomas Ryan, decided by a Jury in the Circuit Court yesterday, there seemed to be a wide and diverging opinion, if one is to judge by the verdict rendered.

The suit was to recover money said to have been lost by the former at the gambling tables of the latter. The amount sought to be returned was $800.40, but the best the twelve good and true men could do was to allow a rebate or rake off of $5.25. A slight difference of $795.15.

Gambling is wrong, altogether wrong—especially progressive euchre—but to the inexperienced it doesn't look exactly square in squealing after losing at a game of chance, especially when one expects to increase his own bank roll by diminishing the other fellow's pile of ducats.

It is just possible that the Jury considered the matter in a philosophical light and arrived at the conclusion that had the shoe been on the other foot; or in other words had Wood won Ryan's money, it would have been alright and nothing said about it.

The Kentucky C. O. D. cases, involving the legality of shipping whisky into "dry" territory, were argued before the United States Supreme Court by Attorney General Hays of Kentucky.

In the suit of Howard, etc., vs. Cole, etc., taken up from this county, the appellant's petition for modification and the appellee's petition for rehearing were overruled in the Court of Appeals.

Dr. Oliver C. Haugh, who murdered his parents and brother at Dayton, Ohio, was electrocuted for his crime yesterday morning at Columbus. He went to his death calmly and stoically.

"The Quest for a Lost Race."

By Thos. E. Pickett, M.D., LL.D.,
Maysville, Ky.

HE readers of THE PUBLIC LEDGER will remember that the subject matter of this work by Dr. Pickett was first published in this paper June 20th, 1908, during "Home Coming Week."

The volume now appears rewritten, revised and enlarged in its present shape, with a preface by the author and a very brilliant introduction by Colonel Ronben T. Durrett, President of the Filson Club of Louisville, the work being the Twenty-second Publication of the Filson Club.

The Filson Club was named in honor of John Filson, the Pioneer explorer and historian of Kentucky.

"The Quest for a Lost Race" is beautiful in typographical execution and is indeed a credit to the author, the Filson Club, and the publishers, John P. Morton & Co.

The work has as its locale Maysville and the state of Kentucky, the "Old Dominion," going back thence to England, Normandy and the Norseland.

The claim that the Anglo-Saxon race sprang from the Teutons, is denied by Dr. Pickett, who takes up the theory of the explorer and philosopher, Paul B. Du Chaillu, who made himself famous by his studies and treatises upon the African gorilla and other notable subjects. Dr. Pickett enlarges and elaborates upon Du Chaillu's theory that the English speaking race descended from the Norseman, or Scandinavian, instead of from the Teuton or German, and that the strongest kind of racial traits and characteristics go to prove that many of the leading families in Kentucky are descendants of the Scandinavians.

Dr. Pickett's elaboration of M. Paul Du Chaillu's theory reveals a new vista, leading into hitherto unexplored fields; which, lighted by the genius of the scholar and the further mastery and investigation, will be illuminated and explained by other writers of generations yet to come.

The work is a study in heredity and therefore deals with the facts as its data with nothing of fiction about its foundation or its composition.

prise conquered, enlightened and civilized the world.

Every Kentuckian should peruse with pardonable and grateful pride this admirable volume by our esteemed and distinguished fellow-citizen—Dr. Thomas Edward Pickett.

"The Quest for a Lost Race" is a notable addition to the world's literature. It is at once recognized by all book-lovers as an American classic and is easily the standard work upon all such subject-matter bearing upon antiquity and two thousand years of ancient, medieval and modern history.

The appreciative reader of this beautiful work will not only be charmed with its classic diction and versatile style, but will also be amazed at the originality displayed by the learned author and his mastery of a subject of such deep interest and of such universal import.

The volume is a mine of information to the student who is inclined to delve into the derivative nomenclature of the past two thousand years and to trace out, generation by generation, an effect frustrated by over twenty centuries of hereditary cause.

The valuable time and the arduous labor expended by the author in the preparation, arrangement and classification of such a vast array of family cognomens, with their derivations, analogies and definitions, mark the work as one inspired by genius, patience, industry and a thorough understanding of the subject.

Dr. Pickett's elaboration of M. Paul Du Chaillu's theory reveals a new vista, leading into hitherto unexplored fields; which, lighted by the genius of the scholar and the further mastery and investigation, will be illuminated and explained by other writers of generations yet to come.

The work is a study in heredity and therefore deals with the facts as its data with nothing of fiction about its foundation or its composition.

It is an easy task for the novelist and the purveyor of the fanciful and unreal, to deluge into the chambers of his imagination and produce the interesting, though the grotesque. But in this volume every name and theme going back to the period of the remotest annals of written English history and tradition, has the germ and the thread of truth running all the way through its thousand or more years of time—from the period of the Vikings of the North, to the modern days of the victorious Americans sea-fighters—he fastens the chain of incisive narrative together link by link, and at last gives to the world the fascinating family story of the origin, the rise and the amalgamation of the most intelligent, enterprising and daring race of people that has ever existed upon the face of the earth—the English-speaking Caucasians.

There is nothing of the sombre in the book, or the miasma of the cloister in its composition. The style is that of the polished wit and the optimistic humor of the finished master of the genus homo; the unabashed philosopher who sees both sides of the subject—the weaknesses, the vagaries and the villainies of humanity, as well as the virtues and higher ideals of the race.

With polished irony the Anglo-Saxons are pictured as the most daring and enterprising of pirates and pioneers; the hero fighters who were predestined by their inherent bravery and ability to overrun the earth; who for the past fifty generations have been slowly, but surely, blazing the way for what we now term "liberty, civilization and industrial progress"—from the Norseland to Normandy, from Normandy to Britain and from Britain to America, where "Westward the course of Empire takes its way" and there now remains no more West to settle or to conquer!

Irlonds and Saxons and Danes are we—But we're all of us scions of the Norseman's tree.

We may well be proud of our Scandinavian ancestry, for we all sprang from a race of Kings—the Vikings.

"QUEST FOR A LOST RACE"

to the Filson Club, Louisville, Ky.

BRIEF SKETCH OF DR. THOMAS E. PICKETT.
Dr. Thomas E. Pickett, the author of "The Quest for a Lost Race," was born near Maysville and three miles North of Washington, Mason county, Kentucky, in 1841.

He entered Central University in 1856 and graduated in 1860. He studied medicine and graduated in 1865 at the University of Pennsylvania, and served while a student as a surgical assistant in the "Peninsular Campaign" of 1864.

After a year of hospital life in Philadelphia, he settled to the practice of medicine in his native county—Mason—in 1866; and, after the period of 41 years he is still actively engaged in his profession in this city.

Dr. Pickett has twice visited Europe, in 1889 and in 1894.

In the autumn of 1894, he wrote for THE PUBLIC LEDGER, a letter announcing the introduction of antitoxin (for diphtheria) by the Pasteur Institute; also an interesting article on Pasteur, the great savant, and an elaborate paper on "Education in France."

On his return to this country he published a paper on "Recent Methods in the Treatment of Fractures," including the famous method of the French surgeon—Championniere, which Dr. Pickett was the first surgeon to describe and practice in the United States.

It is partly on account of this, no doubt, that his name appears in the "4,000" of the Scientific "Who's Who" of the American scientist, Cattell.

In the autumn of 1889, Dr. Pickett attended the Newcastle meeting of the British Association for the Advancement of Science, where he heard the sensational discussion upon the origin of the English race, which he so graphically and pointedly describes in his book.

Dr. Pickett's original paper upon the subject appeared in THE LEDGER last June and the same paper was read, with additions by the author, before the Filson Club of Louisville in November 1906.

Dr. Pickett is a member of the Filson Club, the leading historical society of Kentucky, which makes it a special study of gathering, publishing and preserving pioneer data bearing upon Kentucky history and tradition; besides other works of literary value and interest. Colonel Reuben T. Durrett of Louisville is the present able and honored President of the Club and is sincerely devoted to the work before it.

For a full and biographic account of the Kentucky Picketts, see "Green's Historic Families," and, "The Lopez Exposition," (Filson Club) in the Public Library.

Colonel John Pickett of Rosehill, Mason county, Ky., was the son of Captain William S. Pickett, a planter of Fauquier county, Virginia, who was an officer in the American Revolution. His mother, Elizabeth Metcalfe, was an aunt of Governor Thomas Metcalfe of Kentucky, and of Dr. John T. Metcalfe of New York City. Captain Pickett of Fauquier county had ten children; the third child, John, coming to Mason county in 1789. In 1790 he married Elizabeth Chamberlain, of Prince William county, Virginia, and later built a home near Washington, Ky.

The oldest son, James C. Pickett of Washington, D. C., was the father of Colonel John T. Pickett, and of Joseph Desha Pickett.

The second son, Thomas J. Pickett, who married Margaret Madison Campbell, daughter of Dr. John Poage Campbell, was the father of Dr. Thomas Edward Pickett, the author of this book.

The great-grandfather of his mother was Colonel Samuel McDowell, the President of the Danville Conventions; her grandfather, was Colonel James McDowell of Fayette county, Ky. None of these facts have been mentioned by the author in his book. They will be of interest, however, to all by whom the work is read.

Dr. Pickett is as modest as he is brilliant, and, as he never writes of himself or his antecedents and ancestors, we are pleased to state that his paternal and maternal forbears are of the best and bluest of Anglo-American lineage, and that no better, nor purer nor more gallant, brave and patriotic blood flows in the veins of any Kentuckian or Virginian, superior to the Picketts and the McDowells. Their hospitality and their intelligence, are of the class that peoples the land, especially Kentucky, with those grand old names of "lady and gentleman"—scholars, authors and soldiers; and the courtly wives and daughters of colonial times and of today.

The Chicago Civil Service Commission will investigate a charge that the police department has been collecting immunity money from dives.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address, F. J. New School Building!

Owing to the fact of the School Board's having bought the old Porkhouse (our warehouse) for the site for the new High School Building, we are obliged to move all our vehicles within the next 60 days; and we have figured that it would be better to sell them than to move, a store room in Maysville is pretty scarce just now, and besides it is very expensive to move four or five carloads of crated vehicles.

Therefore!

We are beginning today the most phenomenal sale of vehicles ever held in Maysville, and a word to the wise should be sufficient. If you are contemplating the purchase of a rig of any kind, now is your opportunity.

"ON PAROLE"

At the Washington Last Evening Was a Charming Little Drama.

"Charming, charming!" was the general opinion of the audience that witnessed the war-time drama of "On Parole" at the Wash-

The play in a well-staged, well-written and well-acted setting was a gem, and every member of the company sustained the characters to a nicety.
